Naperville Junction Road Number NJ 801

This 50' standard box car with plug door and no roofwalk has yellow sides, black ends and an aluminum roof. It bears blue and white lettering and runs on black Barber® roller bearing trucks. Naperville Junction Railway was the corporate arm of the Delaware & Hudson Railway in Canada. It operated some 28 miles of line between the U.S. border at Rouses Point, N.Y. and a junction with the CP and CN at St. Constant, Quebec, 20 miles southwest of Montreal. Canadian Pacific absorbed the NJ reporting mark into their listings by 1992 when it purchased D&H.

#038 00 470...$23.95

St. Louis-San Francisco Road Number SL-SF 87422

This 33' USRA panel-side twin-bay hopper is painted black with white logo and lettering, and is released with a coal load. It was built in May 1923 and serviced in February 1935. It runs on Andrews trucks. The hoppers in this series were re-built many times with some of the series receiving panel sides in 1935. The remaining hoppers in the series kept their flat sides.

Central Vermont
Road Numbers CV 50096 / 50098

These 50' rib-side box cars with plug door have white sides, black ends and aluminum roofs. They sport green "CV" logos, green and white lettering, run on black roller bearing trucks. Built by Berwick Forge & Fabricating in August 1974, these cars are two of 200 built for the CV. Most of the series were painted in standard box car red with white lettering, but the final five cars of the series 50095-50099 were painted with white sides, black ends and green lettering. This paint scheme may have marked these cars for newsprint service, a common load for cars in service to the CV at this time.
