New N Scale 3-2 Observation Car

This 83' heavyweight 3-2 observation car is painted Pullman Green with gold logo and lettering. It was built by Pullman Standard in the mid-1920s and runs on six-wheel passenger trucks. A block of eight Plan 3959B "Crystal" series sleeper-observation cars had their air-conditioning applied by the Santa Fe in May and June 1934. The 3-2 observation cars were used on the Santa Fe's heavyweight "Chief" before 1938. One of them, "Crystal Bluff", was part of the original heavyweight "Super Chief" that operated in 1936 and 1937. With the delivery of lightweight equipment for the "Super Chief" and the "Chief" in 1938, these cars became obsolete to the Santa Fe.

This 83' Pullman heavyweight 3-2 observation car is painted light Harbor Mist Gray with UP Armour Yellow sides, red 'Union Pacific' herald and red lettering. It was built by Pullman Standard in the mid-1920s and runs on six-wheel passenger trucks. The Plan 3959D observation car was the common "end-of-train" car style for many passenger trains throughout the early part of the 20th century. The introduction of the steel cars brought the end of the luxurious, artisan-crafted, and custom designed wooden cars which had been the rule since the 1880s. Pullman's Heavyweight construction was modular, making it possible for floor plans to economically evolve with the times.

Norfolk & Western Road Number N&W 70097

This heavyweight depressed center flat car is painted dark brown with white lettering. It was built in 1967, serviced in September 1982, and runs on Buckeye trucks. This heavy duty car, built by Thrall in 1967, has a capacity of 260,000 lbs. and a platform length of 57'9". The depressed center is 21' long, one foot shorter than a similar car built by Roanoke in 1948. The color and lettering pattern are post-1982. The depressed center flat cars were designed to handle oversized loads that were too tall to allow passage through standard tunnels.

These F-7 locomotives are painted UP Yellow with red horizontal stripes flanking the yellow bands. The roofs and ends are painted gray. Lettering is red and outlined in black. These exciting releases represent the livery of the multi-colored Union Pacific F-Series locomotives. Equipped with Blomberg trucks, many of these 1951 UP units joined the immense F3 fleet and some of the F3s, including these locos, were improved to F7 standards. The UP F7 fleet worked for only 10 to 11 years before they were traded-in for GP30s and GP35/DD35s.
