Smithsonian Civil War Series Car #7: Emancipation Proclamation

On January 1st 1863 President Lincoln issued the Emancipation Proclamation which declared that all persons enslaved in the Confederate states were to be set free. While the Proclamation did not immediately end slavery throughout the states, many slaves were freed in certain areas on that day forward. It also created a significant shift in the war as Northerners now fought for the preservation of the Union and the abolition of slavery. Many freed slaves joined the Union forces and vitally contributed to the Union victory and their freedom.

Civil War 150th Anniversary Confederate Train Set

To commemorate the 150th anniversary of the American Civil War we are working with Smithsonian® to bring you a prototypically accurate Civil War Confederate Train Set in N scale! The Confederate Army used a variety of different rail cars to support their efforts throughout the war. This would include service such as hauling freight, ammunitions, troops and even heavy artillery batteries right to the front of the conflict.

This set features a colorful 4-4-0 American Steam Engine and Tender* and three all new car styles; a Box Car, a Flat Car and a Conductor Car. Each 26' car has a new underframe with truss rod detail, new rigid-frame trucks and simulated link and pin style couplers. In addition, this train carries two 13" siege mortar loads and a lumber load. The set is available now, so contact your local dealer today!
